ILL HEALTH CAUSE

Note Found Naming Undertaker, Pall Bearers

Edson Frederick Neuding, 56, well known clerk in the grocery store of his brother, E. S. Neuding, 341 E. Main-st., committed suicide early Monday by shooting himself through the right temple with a .38 caliber revolver.

Mr. Neuding was found dead, seated at the breakfast table in his apartment above the grocery store, 215 E. Main-st.

The cause of his act has not been definitely determined. He complained Saturday of not feeling well. He went to his rooms at noon and was not again seen alive. He told a friend last week that "With things as they now are there isn't much use living."

SEATED AT TABLE

Mr. Neuding is thought to have taken his life at 5:30 a. m. Monday. He was not found until 9:15 a. m. Worrying over failure of his brother to come to work Monday morning, E. S. Mebs, who was repairing the roof and he gained entrance to the room through a window. He was the first person to see Mr. Neuding dead.

JUDGE JOINS KIDNAP HUNT

Borrelli To Try To Regain Joliet Youth For Whom $50,000 Is Sought.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli today joined police and street service operatives in efforts to secure the release of Gustav Miller, 22, of Joliet, Ill., from a Chicago kidnap ring.

Miller was believed held by the "42" gang, with which Judge Borrelli has become familiar through underworld investigations and his work in the courts. Max Miller, rich malt and hops dealer and father of the victim, called the Judge and urged that he help solve the case.

A telephone call, traced to Chicago's west side, scene of the "42" gang's operations, told Max Miller to place $50,000 ransom at a designated spot, fearing for the life of his son. Miller refused to disclose details of his negotiations. Young Miller was abducted as he left the Joliet home of his fiancée at midnight last Thursday.

Judge Borrelli once posed as a gangster and mingled with the hoodlums to gain important information about their criminal activities.

Clarence Brungs In Jail After Attempting To Cut John Rooney Early Sunday

Clarence Brungs, married Saturday, was bound over to the grand jury Monday by Mayor B. T. Hedger upon $1,000 bond on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The affidavit for Brungs' arrest was sworn by John Rooney, 152 E. Union-st.

The grand jury now in session was expected to study the charge. The man, reported intoxicated, was arrested by Officers William McCrady and Thomas McManamy and Desk Officer Ray Smith at 1 a. m. Sunday on S. Court-st. after he allegedly attempted to cut Rooney with a butcher-knife.

Police report that Brungs was arguing with two residents of Whistler concerning driving a truck belonging to a Whistler man. The argument became hotter and after a few minutes Brungs wielded a long butcher-knife and started for Rooney, using anything but the king's English. Rooney did just what anyone else with common sense would do, he ran into the new location of the Frank Howard barber shop and locked the door. Brungs was taken back to an automobile by friends where he was placed under arrest.

Witnesses, according to the police report, were Frank Howard, James Sweetman, Russell Lane, Leslie Marshall, John McCrady and Arthur Palm, this city, and Noble Dawson and Lyman Unger of Whistler.

RETRIAL OF 4 'HALF-CASTES' TO BEGIN SOON

Mrs. Massie to Testify; Pardon of Governor Judd Expected for Americans

PETITION IS DRAWN

Navy to Act on Charges of Prosecutor

HONOLULU, T. H., May 2.—While the Navy moved unofficially to back to its utmost the appeal of the four "honor slaying" defendants from manslaughter verdicts, the territory of Hawaii today set in motion machinery for the retrial of the half-castes accused of attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie.

Territorial authorities hoped that swift action against the men accused of the brutal assault may serve to dull mainland criticism of the conviction of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, and two sailors, convicted of killing Joseph Kahawai, accused ringleader of the gang.

A conference has been called between Prosecutor John C. Kelley, members of the attorney general's staff, and counsel for the defendants in the assault case and it was considered likely that the retrial may start this week.

MRS. MASSIE TO TALK

Since Mrs. Massie has expressed her willingness to take the witness stand for the third time and tell again the story of her ordeal, Kelley will probably remain on the sidelines in the retrial.

Mrs. Massie showed open antagonism toward Kelley for his prosecution of her husband and mother.

"The territory of Hawaii will go into the retrial of the Ala Moana (Mrs. Massie) attack case with some new evidence, and I believe that we will convict the four remaining defendants," said Harold Kay, deputy attorney general.

Meanwhile the details of the appeal from the "honor slaying" conviction were worked out by Clarence Dawson and his associates, encouraged by mainland sympathy. The navy will lend its aid in this, according to word reaching here from Washington. Lieut. Louis H. C. Johnson, naval legal advisor associated with Dawson, said he expected to remain here indefinitely to participate in action before the Hawaiian supreme court.

THIEVING BAND SOUGHT AFTER SEVERAL JOBS

Service Station and Newly Furnished Home Robbed Saturday, Sunday

SHERIFF IS BUSY

Two Previous Jobs Are Cause of Much Worry

Residents of the northern part of Jackson-twp and of the southern part of Scioto-twp are on the lookout for a band of thieves who have been committing depredations in that vicinity in the past few weeks.

Robberies at the homes of George Adkins and Jack Farlow in Scioto-twp in which food and household goods were stolen were climaxed Saturday and Sunday nights by robberies of a service station on the Jackson-pk operated by Mr. Adkins and at the home to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer on the Felix Caldwell farm in Jackson-twp.

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff and his deputies, unable to do much outside work Monday because of the May grand jury convening, were nevertheless investigating several clues that might bring results.

The filling station was broken into and cigars, boxes of matches and other articles were stolen.

Much loss was reported at the Reichelderfer home where two new rugs were stolen with several lamps, small rugs and other articles. Mr. and Mrs. Reichelderfer and their baby have been living with Mrs. Reichelderfer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Rader, and were preparing to remove to their new home this week. They had furnished it only to have the thieves steal much of the furniture.

The Adkins home was broken into a week ago when the family was absent operating the service station and the Farlow home was away on Saturday evening two weeks ago.

Members of the sheriff's department have been patrolling the Jackson-pk in an effort to arrest the culprits but as yet have had no success.

FORMER GOVERNOR OF MICHIGAN HERE

Chase Salmon Osborne Searching For Records of His Mother's Family.

Circleville was honored Sunday by the visit of a distinguished personage, Hon. Chase Salmon Osborne, and his daughter, Miss Stella Osborne.

Mr. Osborne, ex-governor of Michigan, is perhaps the most distinguished man to ever hold that office. He is widely known as a political leader and newspaper man. He is a contributor to the Detroit Free Press and the Literary Digest.

The visit to Circleville was occasioned by Mr. Osborne's desire to learn something of the ancestors of his mother who was born in this county April 30, 1825, and who lived in or near this city until her marriage. Her maiden name was Margaret Anna Fannon. She became a noted doctor of medicine.

Mr. Osborne and his daughter were Sunday evening dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones at their home, Park Place.

Her husband said his wife feared their marriage would be annulled if it became known to their folks, hence the operation. Dr. Richard E. 2 OTHERS INJURED

Condition Serious; Wreck on Williamsport-pk

Edward Kocher, aged 60, an employee of a Columbus creamery company, was in a critical condition at Berger hospital Monday following an automobile crash on Route 56, three miles north of Laurelville Sunday at 2 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Diebel of 606 S. 4th-st. Columbus, also in the Ford roadster which was smashed, were treated for cuts and bruises at the hospital and discharged later in the evening.

LOST CONTROL

The accident is thought to have occurred when the driver of the car, Mr. Diebel, lost control of the machine. It went off the road, the Deffenbaugh ambulance was summoned and the injured were taken to the hospital. Dr. H. H. Wagner of Adelphi gave the injured first aid before they were taken to the hospital and placed under the care of Dr. D. V. Courtney.

WALKER DEFEATS LEVINSKY

NEW ALBANY TAKES ADVANTAGE OF FACT THAT THREE MUST BE OUT TO RETIRE SIDE

Ashville's Suburban league baseball team looked anything but impressive Sunday in losing the opening league game to the champion New Albany outfit. The score was 7-3 with all of New Albany's runs crossing the plate after two had been retired in each inning in which they were counted.

Reg Pettibone, Bud Costlow and Bo Wellington did well on the hill but failure of the Stoker-men to club with the paths occupied and the fact that several costly errors were made cost the counties what chance they had to cop.

TRIPLES DO WORK
New Albany scored first when Art Beatty misjudged a long fly in the high wind in center field after two were out the ball going for a triple. The next batter singled. The next marker came over under similar circumstances a batter tripling to right field with two out and the next batter singling.

Another New Albany run counted when Murray, shortstop, threw the ball over the first baseman's head permitting the runner to go to second and on the next ball fumbled an easy grounder.

Ashville then scored two runs on doubles by Costlow and Art Beatty and a single by Ed Trego. But that was all the Ashvillians could do in the New Albany hurler, Fennell, clever right hander.

New Albany scored again before getting a gift of three runs in the eighth frame. With two out and a man on third Art Steele pegged badly to first base giving the runner a life and permitting the run to score from third. The next batter, Johnson, put one among the sweet peas in left field for the circuit of Bud Costlow.

BEATTY CONNECTS
Ashville's last run was a home run to center field by Emmerson Beatty, right fielder.

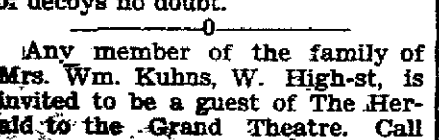

A large number of Circleville fans attended the game to see Art Steele perform. He got a single the first time at bat, stole second and went to third on a passed ball where he died. He caught a pop fly before he pegged short to first base.

Ashville's game for next Sunday has not yet been announced by the league president, Ben Ratner.

Spanish Royal Palace
Is Now Open to Public
Madrid.—The former royal palace at Madrid, one of the finest of its kind in the world, has been thrown open to the public as the "Museum of the Republic."
Visitors are allowed to see the throne room, sitting rooms, banquet hall, the famous "Hall of Columns," where so many functions—including that of footballing on Good Friday—took place, but so far they are not permitted to visit the private apartments and bedrooms formerly occupied by the king, queen and the Infantes.
During the days of the monarchy the palace was not open to the public, but it was nevertheless possible to gain admittance through a letter from the king's embassy post to the royal family was not in residence at that time.
And it would be news if the pedestrian occasionally bowed over the motor car.

GOLDBAR BUTTER MADE IN COUNTY

Scientists regard the maintenance of abundant health as the most important function of vitamins. Because butter contains large amounts of vitamins it is used by the body to create this health reserve.

WHY PEOPLE PREFER
Everybody prefers butter for the best of reasons. They like its natural delicious flavor. It improves any food to which it is added. Good cooks have always known that its unique flavor cannot be imitated. Judges in recent baking contests voted unanimously in favor of the products made with butter.

GOLDBAR butter is churned fresh daily from fresh cream in Circleville by the Pickaway Dairy Co., the only creamery in Pickaway-co. GOLDBAR butter contains the growth promoting elements not found in so-called substitutes. There is no substitute for butter. GOLDBAR is sold by all grocers under a positive guarantee of satisfaction.

RALPH STIR HAS CASE TOOLS HERE

Springtime farm work cannot be a success if efficient tools and machinery are not used and therefore Business Review recommends the products as offered by Ralph Stir, who has been the representative of Case Farm Machinery for five years. His establishment is located on E. Main-st.

Mr. Stir now has the new and complete line of Case machinery on hand and will gladly make arrangements for demonstrations if he is notified.

He supplies Pickaway-co and parts of Franklin, Fairfield and Fayette-co with Case tools and they are always found to be satisfactory.

Plows, tractors, threshers, outfits, silo fillers, hay balers and a full line of tillage tools, Case-Osborne binders and mowers and the De Luxe Plows are part of the tools which are on display at Mr. Stir's shop.

SEES UNTRUBLED MARKET FOR MILK

Supplies of surplus milk—that which remains to be marketed after dealers' sales of fresh fluid milk and cream have been made—will be in better control in 1932 than they have in the past two years, in the opinion of C. G. McBride, milk marketing specialist for the Ohio State University.

The dairymen are bringing about this readjustment by not sending their surplus milk to market as fluid milk, but as cream, says McBride. Ever since much of the milk surplus could not be profitably converted into manufactured milk products, the farmer who has been sending his surplus fluid milk to market has sacrificed his skimmilk, an excellent feed, and in addition has paid for hauling it to market.

Under conditions prevailing during the decade ending with 1930, manufactured milk products had a value that made possible paying a price in the market that would cover the value of the butterfat if separated and sold at the farm, the value of skimmilk for feeding purposes, and the cost of transportation.

Now the condition is different, explains McBride. Prices of milk products most commonly made from surplus milk have declined drastically, and the item which in most instances is now the largest freight charge, has not declined as has the price of manufactured products.

Dairymen have responded by skimming their milk, sending the cream to market and feeding the skimmilk, to save transportation charges. Since more and more are doing this the surplus situation is gradually being brought under control.

HOME COOKING IS OFFERED AT MECCA
The Mecca Restaurant is an eating place where home-cooked food is a feature and where you can eat more for your money.

This restaurant operated by Mr. John Carle has a fine reputation for the sanitary condition in which it may always be found and for the quality food dished out at such fair prices.

The Mecca is known to almost every one who eats down-town in Circleville. It is somewhat a cafeteria and you may see what you are going to eat before it is brought to you. This is a feature that every eating place does not offer.

The food is cooked by efficient lady chefs and is good to the last particle.

Try the Mecca's food the next time you are downtown.

OHIO SCHOOLS USE UNTRAINED TEACHERS SURVEY DISCLOSES

COLUMBUS, May 2.—While there is an oversupply of trained teachers, many Ohio schools have teachers not professionally trained for the particular work they are doing, it is disclosed in "Teacher Supply and Demand in Ohio, 1929-1930," written by Dr. Earl W. Anderson, head of the appointment division, Ohio State University, and Dr. Richard R. Foster, assistant director, research division, National Education Association. The work has just been published jointly by the university and by the Ohio Education Association.

Dr. Foster's section of the book concerns teacher supply, and demand in the elementary schools. He concludes that less than two years of training for grade school teaching are inadequate; that statewide requirements of two-year training will be the only means of reaching this standard. He favors a law requiring the two-year standard for all those coming into the teaching profession and for the attaining of this status by present unqualified teachers.

The second part of the book, written by Dr. Anderson, concerns teacher supply and demand in high schools. It stresses the fact that many high school classes are being taught by teachers not professionally prepared in the subject they are teaching. Dr. Anderson believes that a standardization of combinations of subjects would relieve the situation.

He suggests the centralization of all certification in the state department of education and the granting of teaching certificates to those who hold degrees from teacher training schools.

Students Barred From Peddling

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 2.—College students were barred today from peddling during the summer months by means of the "sympathy racket."

Twenty-seven leading eastern colleges and universities issued a prohibition to their students against selling magazines or other articles on the sympathy appeal for the salesman as student rather than on the merit of the product to be sold.

"The practice is definitely harmful to the college students' moral sense," said Professor Albert Beecher Crawford, director of the department of personal study at Yale university.

He declared the appeal of a student to a prospective customer he needed to sell to help win a scholarship amounted to begging and desecrated his self-respect.

SEEKS JUDGESHIP

Robert N. Wilkin, of Dover, O., who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Supreme Court of Ohio. He has practiced law for 25 years.

Economic ills are the result of ignorance, and our present mental inertia stands in the way of relief, according to Robert N. Wilkins, candidate for election of the Supreme Court of Ohio, in a series of articles, "Socialized But Not Socialistic," which appeared recently in Finance & Industry, a weekly financial newspaper.

Seeking to develop a better understanding of the social evolution at work in our day and to relieve the public's mind of "the fear and prejudice born of ignorance," Mr. Wilkin, basing his conclusions on many years of study and travel writes:

"Many business men, industrial leaders and politicians oppose all innovations because they fear Socialism. And by damming the stream of progress they increase the danger of a flood. But the time has come when we must relieve the pressure or be inundated."

"The socializing influence of our time should not be confused with Bolshevism. Our social evolution has been brought about by the influence of religion, the development of science and the development of a business and industry."

"A gigantic task of political, industrial and social development lies ahead of Russia before it can reach our state of civilization. The despotism of the Czar could be exchanged for the despotism of the soviet by Russians. But the Anglo-Saxon race is not likely to exchange its political heritage for such a mess of pottage."

"Our new-found liberty in a land of unexploited resources developed into an extreme individualism—a very severe capitalism. But now the pendulum swings the other way toward socialization—and we are uneasy because we do not know how far it will go. There are two extremes of government in the world today—Fascism and Communism—and they both scoff at our democracy, our liberalism. The safe course is the middle road. We should keep our balance between the extremes. We should hold to the golden mean between socialism and individualism."

"Epidemic depression must be prevented the same as epidemic diseases are prevented."

"Greatest benefits will follow from our general social consciousness and conscience. We have due to a recognition of our interdependence in all things. We acknowledge that business too is subject to the moral order of the universe. We cannot violate the order with impunity. We must ally antagonisms and invite a scientific attitude of mind."

When Trotsky said Stalin is tottering he was not using him as a horrible example at a temperance meeting.

An immediate investigation was started by Assistant Highway Director, P. Chapman, who said contractors for the road projects will be declared forfeited if the charges are found to be true.

Chapman declined to name the contractors and the laborers who entered the protests, pending further inquiry. The average sum said to be due from contractors was placed at $150.

PLAN TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM MINE

COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—Plans for withdrawing all Ohio National Guard troops from the eastern Ohio coal strike field as soon as possible were to be disclosed here today at a conference between Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson and Col. William U. Marlin, commander of militiamen stationed at Cadiz.

Further demobilization of troops probably will be ordered tomorrow, Henderson announced.

The general could give no indication of when troops will evacuate the mining section completely, although he expressed the hope that the troops will not be far away. Approximately 200 militiamen now remain on duty at Cadiz, guarding against outbreaks by strikers who staged a walk-out April 1. The troops were called out after several shootings which resulted in two deaths.

Man Attempts To Poison Family

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 2.—His mind believed to have been temporarily affected, Harry V. Turner was held in jail here today after police responded to information that the man attempted to wipe out his family by poisoning their food.

Authorities said that enough bichloride of mercury was found in coffee cups and in the milk to kill every member of the family. The police were told Turner distributed the poison at the Sunday dinner table in full view of his wife and children.

Some of the tablets were crushed and mixed with the sugar, and dissolved in gravy. A bottle of the deadly tablets was found on his person, according to police.

Headquarters here said today that no charge had been lodged against Turner pending an investigation of his mental condition was to be studied.

MORE TAXES ADDED TODAY

Telephone and Telegraph Messages Taxed in Plan of Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Seeking fresh sources of revenue to balance the budget the Senate finance committee today increased the proposed tax on beer and imposed levies on bond issues and telephones and telgraph messages.

Newspapers were hit when the committee refused to exempt them from the telephone and telegraph message tax. They were given a concession when the committee refused the rate on leased wires from ten to five per cent of the service charged.

The ten per cent tax on amusement admissions was reaffirmed but the committee exempted the olympic games in California and all scholastic and collegiate athletic events. It was noted that these contests were not operated for individual profits so an exception was made in their favor.

Judge's English Bad, but His Law Is Good

Bridgeport, Conn.—Superior Court Judge Foster gave himself zero in English, but marked himself 100 in law.

Counsel sought to have his judgments in two civil actions set aside because he used faulty language, saying "an ordinarily reasonable and prudent person." Foster declining to set aside the judgments said:

"This group of words constitutes awkward, clumsy and imperfect English. In place of these words there should be substituted 'reasonably prudent person.' But the only power the court has to disturb the verdict is based on some error of law by the judge or jury."

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy had youth and beauty and an intense fear of poverty. Almost the last words of her dying mother warned her against marriage to a poor man. Mary refuses the offer of a home with her married sister, Katherine. She rents a small room. While sitting in the park making plans for a job, an elderly man of distinguished appearance engages her in conversation. He is Buck Landers, well known sports promoter and race horse owner. He offers Mary a job as secretary. Mary calls on Landers relative to the position.

CHAPTER III

It was one of the small, new hotels in the Forties that have sprung up in recent years. The lobby was overdecorated with Corinthian columns and gilded plaster designs. As Mary stood waiting for the elevator, a man and a girl, theatrical in attire and manner, passed her. In deep, upholstered chairs two gruff-faced men with black brows were conversing with scarcely a movement of their tight lips. The elevator, operated by a West Indian negro in a resplendent uniform, carried her rapidly up twelve stories. Mary stepped out of the lift and saw, at the end of the short corridor, an open door. As she hesitated a moment, Landers appeared and nodded to her. The room, when she entered it, proved to be the parlor of a suite which was rather extensive. Through a side door she observed the rich furnishings of a small dining room. Buck Landers smiled with slight pleasantness. It was evident that he was not to go into any paroxysm of delight at her appearance. His eyes, though, like steady gimlets, were observing her closely as she came toward him.

What he saw was a delicately made young girl no taller than his shoulders. She was a slender little thing with hints of golden hair showing under her small tight hat; her smooth-lidded eyes, deeply blue, were a trifle shy. She came up to him; there was a faint smile on her face. Landers' eyes followed her as she moved toward him. He was not to go into any paroxysm of delight at her appearance. His eyes, though, like steady gimlets, were observing her closely as she came toward him.

"The manager of this hotel needs a secretary," he said directly.

trouble with him, no personal trouble—know what I mean?"

Mary knew precisely what he meant. She nodded. "That'll make it nice," she said briefly.

"It is mostly routine work in the manager's private office," Landers went on. "If you have half as much brains as I think you have, you can make yourself indispensable. You don't have to break your neck working overtime, either. Nelson tells me he started the last girl at fifty dollars a week, and she was getting sixty-five when she quit. How does that strike you?"

"That's more money than I've afraid, Mr. Landers, that you wouldn't like me very much as a friend."

"Why not?" he demanded.

"Well, you mentioned something about beautiful women in New York the other day, and your lovely fire-works girl friend who wanted to stick a knife into you—I'm not that kind. That stuff doesn't appeal to me in the slightest—if you know what I mean?"

She was aware of an increasing magnetism deepening in his eyes.

"I know you're not that kind," he said levelly. "That's why I like you. But don't shy off from me too quickly; we're all human, you know."

"The manager of this hotel needs a secretary," he said directly.

ever earned before," she said frankly.

His eyes studied her enigmatically and she had no idea what he was thinking about. Perhaps his mind was on business affairs of his own—she might be no more than an empty name to him.

"When you leave, you can step in at Nelson's office on the second floor," he informed her. "You can arrange the details of your job with him."

She started to rise and thank him, but he motioned her back into her chair.

"We've got the business end over with, and now let's be a little sociable," he said, looking at her with a new shade of warmth. "You don't owe me anything, and I don't owe you anything."

"But I do owe you a lot for getting me a position like this," Mary declared.

"No, that is nothing," he told her gravely. "I haven't done anything at all for you yet; I could be the best friend you ever heard tell of, if it works out that way. Yes, sir, I don't know when I've seen a girl that strikes me just in the same way you do. You're all alone in the world, aren't you?"

Mary's heart warmed to his friendliness but a little inner voice of sophistication murmured a warning. She didn't want to give him any false ideas and spoil everything.

It would be nice, though, to have his friendship and repay him, if the occasion arose, with a bit of loyalty. Already she sensed him as a protective force, and there was the beginning of a faint youthful idealism.

"Yes, I'm alone—that is, I've been alone, but I have a married sister in Brooklyn," she told him. "I'm Don't make the mistake of feeling that you're too holy for this earth. Take it easy and we'll see how things work out."

Mary rose, smiled lightly, and said: "We'll let it go at that."

Landers rose and looked at his watch. "That's fair enough. Possibly you don't know it, but you're having dinner with me tonight. Will you meet me here at the hotel or shall I call for you at the house?"

Her eyes widened with surprise and she knew that it was going to be difficult to say no.

Dinner that night with Buck Landers on the roof of the gigantic Mortensthorff. . . . A bright canopy of brilliant Summer stars overhead.

Mary's small slippers on the softest of carpets under the table.

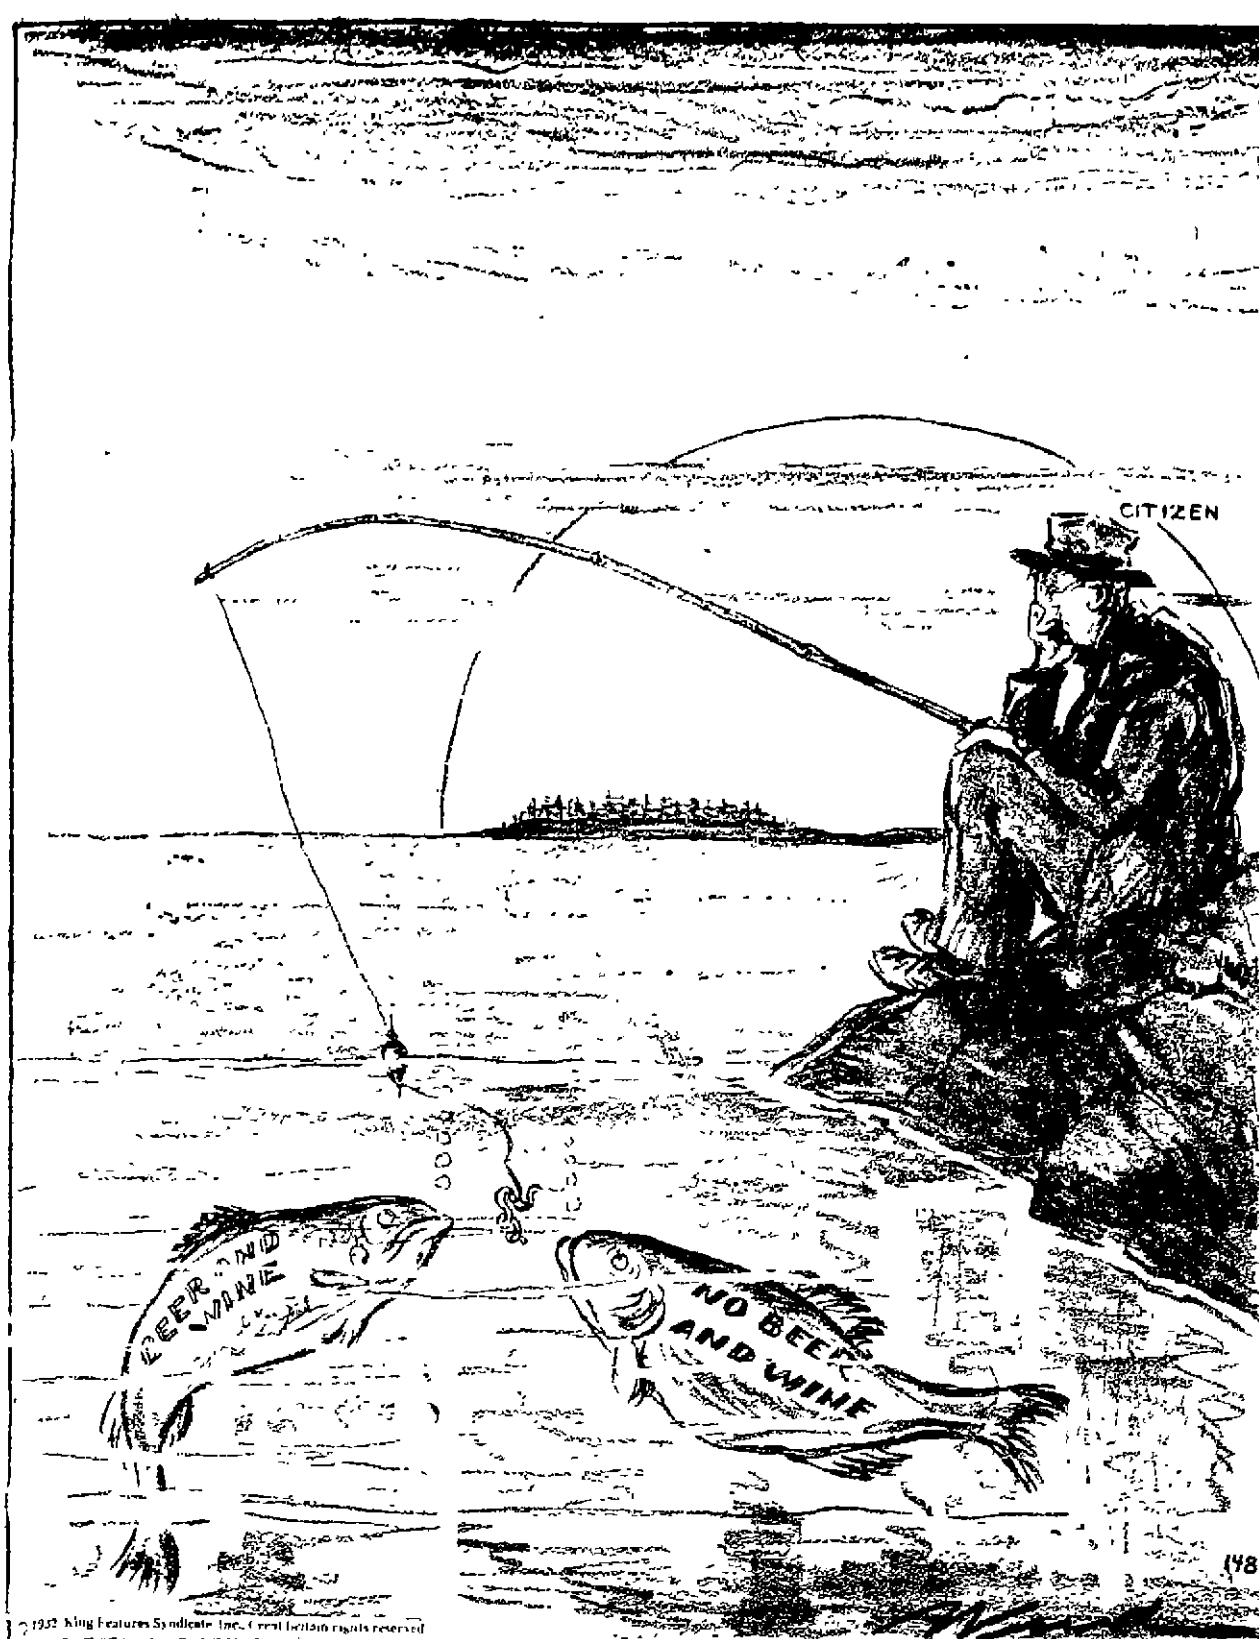

She sat in her upholstered dining chair with the small dining table and its stiff white linen separating her from Landers. . . . Flawless silver and the subdued gleam of discreet china spread immaculately before them enhanced the unfamiliar savor of strange foods. The headwaiter hovered solicitously and called Mr. Landers by name.

Miraculously, there had been created here an illusion of an outdoor garden; the man-made twilight hung softly over flowering shrubs; a pool rippled with small musical swishes of water and reflected vaguely the shadows of cunningly located bushes edging the pool. The border of trumpet-shaped white flowers emanated a faint sweetness. Hidden somewhere, the stringed orchestra murmured a gently throbbing melody.

"Ptomain Poisoning" Is a Term You Shouldn't Use

Ptomains Now Known to Be Chemical Combinations Resulting from Decay and Modern Methods of Handling Food Make Ptomain Cases Infrequent

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

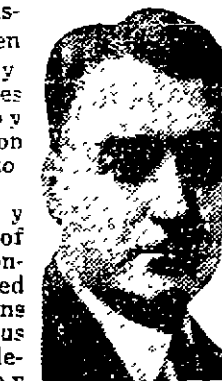

WHEN foods decompose and decay, certain chemical reactions take place and poisonous substances develop. These chemical combinations often cause much distress if taken into the body.

These substances, formed by putrefaction, are called "ptomains."

The early conception of ptomain poisoning is a misnomer. It is always advised the drinking of six to eight glasses of water each day. When you drink water you dilute and eliminate through your skin and kidneys, whatever poisons accumulate in your body.

Tub baths are beneficial because they cleanse the skin and wash away the poisons excreted through the pores. Constant care to avoid contamination is important, for it does away with the danger of absorption of ptomains and other detrimental food substances.

We know about foods and how to care for them. Modern methods of refrigeration have helped a lot. Rapid transportation facilities and expansion of the canning industry have done away with many of the dangers of decayed and spoiled foods. The laws have given protection to the consumer, and perhaps no greater progress has been made anywhere than in the preservation of foods.

It has been proved that bacteria do not liberate such poisons. Ptomains differ in this respect from "toxins"—poisons which are products of bacteria and which are highly detrimental to the body.

Ptomains are merely decomposition products, and as a rule they are easily handled by the body. They are often harmless and cause little, if any, distress. The ill effects caused by ptomains are usually of short duration. Ptomains and toxins are a menace if continuously liberated. These substances are irritating and produce inflammations of the mucous membranes of the body.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

10 YEARS AGO

W. J. Cook of Jamestown, O. has taken a position with the E. A. Allen Co. of Stoutsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wardell of Williamsport announce the birth of a son, Saturday, April 22, 1922.

Dean Alfred Vrvian of Ohio State University gave an interesting talk on his trip through India at the U. B. Community house last evening.

15 YEARS AGO

One of the most beautiful of the many church weddings in Circleville was celebrated Saturday evening when Charles T. Gilmore of New York and Lucille Weldon of this city were married.

Dr. G. S. Corne, Republican, and H. W. Plum, Democrat, have been named members of the county board of elections.

Herbert O. Blue, formerly of Walnut-twp. is critically ill at his home in Columbus.

L. C. Dick of West Jefferson, known here, has been elected superintendent of the Madison county schools to succeed J. A. Rungan.

25 YEARS AGO

Mark Kirkendall of Chicago has been called home by the illness of his father, Capt. W. H. Kirkendall.

Miss Lillian Jeffries and Samuel E. Goff were married by Father Hannan at St. Joseph's Church.

James J. Egan retired as health officer yesterday. Chief of Police Stites took up his duties.

C. G. Roseberry, Editor of the Shawnee (Oklahoma) News, says: "That in a recent survey by a certain newspaper to determine the features which had the greatest advertising interest, it was found that advertising ranked near the top. People are evidently interested in supplying as many of their wants as possible with the least outlay of money. To do so they read advertising religiously. The most important thing business can do to hasten good times is to go forward with a full head of steam in an advertising campaign that will be extensive and aggressive to inspire confidence among money and timid money makers and a way into the channels of business and a sufficient volume of advertising will turn the tide."

More the product of brain and muscle is truly the life blood of the nation. Its rebuilding and reaping power is possible only when it is in circulation. Hoarded by individuals and congested in great banking institutions, it is as useless as clots of blood are to a sick man who needs his tissues bathed and healed by warm and liquid blood. Advertising is the best cure for congestion and coagulation.

Theaters

AT THE CLEVELAND

Edward Sutherland, the man who directed "Sky Devils," the Howard Hughes' production playing at the Chiffona theatre, is considered the ace of comedy directors.

Sutherland has directed more humorous film hits than any other megaphone artist in Hollywood.

The director, still a young man, began his movie-making career as assistant to Charlie Chaplin. As a director in his own right he turned out a succession of outstanding comedies, including the Berrington features, and more recently, the Eddie Cantor pictures, "Whooper" and "Palmy Days."

"Sky Devils" is considered the directorial triumph of his career, and as a result of his work on this picture, Sutherland is being touted as a candidate for one of next year's prizes from the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences.

"Sky Devils" is the first comedy-spectacle of the air, and is panicking audiences at the Chiffona with its genuine laughs and thrills.

The cast is headed by Spencer Tracy, William Boyd, George Cooper and Ann Dvorak.

Tuesday brings Jean (Platinum Blonde) Harlow in her latest hit, "East of the City," with Walter Huston and Wallace Ford.

AT THE GRAND

Comedy and tragedy pitched against a background of an auto camp, which is brought to the screen for the first time, form the highest-light of "The Big Shot," an RKO Pathe production starring Eddie Quillan now playing an engagement at the Grand Theatre.

It is the story of an ambitious youngster in a small town who fights for success and the respect of the girl he loves in spite of terrific hard luck and the unscrupulous methods of his enemies.

Chock full of pathos and yet with plenty of good clean, sparkling comedy, "The Big Shot" gives Quillan one of the greatest opportunities of his career again to prove his versatility as an all-around star.

The Primer Complex

It has been indirectly suggested by the department of superintendence of the National Education Association that nothing should be presented by the movies, radio and newspapers which did not have the approval of the school authorities.

In its zeal for the education of the young the teaching profession forgets that more adults than children attend the movies, listen to radio and read newspapers, and no adult wants school authorities censoring entertainment, instruction and reading.

Advocates of further censorship in these fields are usually of one type, the hysterical and the politician. The first exaggerate the threat of censorship and the latter are actuated by the hope of selfish gain. Both would have the public believe the few horrible examples they are able to cite are the rule.

What these zealots are agitating is the ordering of all things in this disordered world to suit the immature and the subnormal, who represent a small minority of the whole population. They would make the movies a fairy book, the radio a kindergarten and the newspapers a primer. And then they would expect the majority to enjoy them more.

It is a pretty well established fact that most of the things the censor and reformer object to on the ground that they are injurious to the young or the moron are actually harmless because not understood by them. For some even the movies, radio and newspapers have their profundities.

The Washington Quarter

TWO considerations prompted the decision of the government at Washington to mint a new quarter dollar. One of the recent issues did not wear well, and a coin commemorating the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington is deemed desirable.

There is a law providing that no change in the design or die of any coin shall be made oftener than once in 25 years, and yet 15 special coins have been issued in the last decade.

Issuing a new coin is not a simple matter. A design must be examined and approved. The composition of the alloy requires extensive care and is carefully supervised by the assayer. And the actual minting necessitates several operations.

The first coin of the republic was minted by John Harper, a maker of saws. It was a copper penny bearing a crude likeness of Washington in military dress and an eagle with outstretched wings, claws grasping an olive branch and arrows and holding in its beak a ribbon inscribed "Unum E Pluribus."

Half cents followed in 1792. Prior to that time American money was a conglomeration of foreign coins and currency from the foreign lands with which the colonies traded. Cecil Calvert, the second lord Baltimore, tried to establish a colonial currency in 1659, but the colonists would not accept his home-made coins.

In contrast to this early suspicion of new money will be the avidity with which the American people will grab up the new Washington quarters.

Time Waste of Red Lights

MOTORISTS in American cities spend from 27 to 35 years every day waiting for the red light to turn green. A tremendous waste of time, yet to the driver every wait for the green seems that long.

Consider also the millions of gallons of gasoline burned up in idling motors by reasons of these same delays, and the aggregate depreciation in value of the motor vehicles and the wear on the motors.

Admitting that at least four-fifths of these stoppages are necessary, more careful timing of the others would avoid much waste of time, save money and sweeten life.

The defense in the case of The Motorists vs. The Red Light can plead the thousands of years added to human lives by the safety insured by the traffic light.

After considering all the evidence the jury returns a verdict for the substitution of boulevard stops for traffic lights where cross traffic does not warrant the latter, for staggering on arterial highways and for more scientific timing of the alternating lights.

The job of the traffic engineer is to cut down the annual cost of motoring as well as to save life and property and keep the highways clear.

Once upon a time there was a voter presumptuous enough to think that the people determined the issues.

Any member of the family of William L. R. F. D. 3, Circleville, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

The Daily Horoscope

In the afternoon benefits are indicated for those in power. Constructive leadership will assume month-long duration during the coming month. Favorable conditions are being created which will favor greater harmony between capital and labor. Less emphasis will be put upon the profit motive and more consideration will be given to the human element.

Those who have financial affairs to undertake should take advantage of the beneficial conditions prevailing tonight. A time to seek loans and consider investments. Beneficial also for religious workers who may be seeking financial support.

Children whose birthday this is are usually well-liked. They possess an abundance of love for home and domestic affairs. They seldom care to reasons out the why or wherefor of anything, having the ability even as babies to know things intuitively and psychically. Such children are not the type to accept criticism or dictation. They are not very talkative on account of their independence of character. A child born on this date does not make friends easily but they become very loyal and dependable to those they know and love.

Grown-ups born on this date, as well as those born the last twenty days of this month, may find the latter part of 1932 more advantageous in both social and business ways.

Among the world's most famous persons whose birthdays fall on this date are: Catherine II, the Great empress of Russia; 1729. Albert W. Tourgee, American poet and author; 1858. Franklin D. Roosevelt, American president and composer; 1881.

Colleagues To Honor Dean Alfred Vivian When He Retires From Post

COLUMBUS, May 2.—Dean Alfred Vivian, who plans to retire at the end of the present school year after 30 years in the service of the college of agriculture, Ohio State University, will be honored May 23 by his colleagues with a "recognition dinner" on the campus.

Speakers at the dinner will be Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of the university; Director C. G. Williams, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station; and President G. W. Rightmire, of the university. A response will be made by Dean Vivian. Deans of the college, administrative officers of the university, friends of Dean Vivian and members of the college of agriculture staff will be specially invited to the dinner.

Dean Vivian is retiring at his own request in accordance with plans he announced five years ago. He expects to spend his time chiefly in traveling. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, where he taught for eight years, Dean Vivian came to Ohio State university in 1902 as associate professor of agricultural chemistry. Three years later he was promoted to a full professorship and in 1915 was made dean.

Under his deanship, the services of the college to Ohio farmers and to Ohio agriculture have been greatly widened. Dean Vivian is well known throughout the state, especially for his lectures on "Ohio Beautiful." He has an extensive collection of photographs showing the natural beauties of the state.

Both of the boys have been members of county judging teams which competed at the State Fair. They too have been active in high school affairs, particularly in athletics. White won 14 prizes in the open classes at county and state fairs with livestock he had raised. Brown is president of the Fairfield Future Farmers, a club group of older farm boys in Fairfield County.

While refusing to comment on the case, it was learned that Earl Admiral Stirling believed that the outcome of the case may speed congressional action for a semi-military form of government for Hawaii, which he has already recommended.

Stirling recently suggested federal control of the laws of Hawaii and their enforcement because of the military importance of the islands.

Nervous tension which has overhung Honolulu since the mixed blood jury convicted the defendants relaxed today after a quiet week-end unmarred by disorders.

There was a growing belief in business circles that Governor Lawrence Judd may pardon the four Americans after their sentencing on Friday, thus bring to an end what otherwise promises to be a long drawn out legal battle.

Former Governor Walter Francis Frear, who was also chief justice of the Hawaiian supreme court, pointed out to International News Service that Gov. Judd did not need to wait for the sentencing but could grant executive clemency at once.

Gov. Judd has maintained silence on the matter, contending that nothing has been placed before him and that the case was still in the hands of the courts.

The circulation of a pardon petition for the defendants sponsored by the Citizens' Organization for Good Government continued today. A mass meeting to further the pardon campaign may be held later in the week, according to Mrs. Anne Kluegel, chairman of the committee.
